

Intended for use on desks in telephone company business offices for the observation of conversations between customers and telephone company employees.

Each arranged to mount one K2 transmitter unit.

Each consists of a black glass base with a felt bottom, a fountain pen and socket, a holder for calendar cards which also conceals the transmitter, a set of calendar cards and a frame with a card to identify the employee.

Illustration shows the No. 16L. The No. 16R is the same, except that the positions of the pen and calendar are interchanged.

Arranged to mount permanently on the desk, with the connecting wires to transmitter unit passing through the mounting tube and top of the desk. When it is not desired to fasten permanently to desk, mounting tube and stud can be removed and connection made by means of an R2DW cord for which a groove to the rear of the mounting is provided in the base.

Orders for these transmitter mountings shall specify the year for which the calendar pads are to be used.

Replacing set of calendar cards can be obtained by ordering a P-290100 calendar set for year_____.
