

farm INTERPHONE

Gives you intercom plus regular telephone service—new from your Bell Telephone Company farm INTERPHONE THE HANDIEST HELPER YOU'LL EVER HAVE

Farm Interphone ties your whole farming operation together. It's a completely new system that gives you both regular telephone service and intercom from strategically located points around your farmstead.

With it you can talk and hear over a wide area without taking a step or interrupting your work. Your wife can handle calls and talk with you without running to the farm buildings.

Interphone helps you run things more smoothly—accomplish more every day. Often fewer hands are needed. Time is saved, and money too.

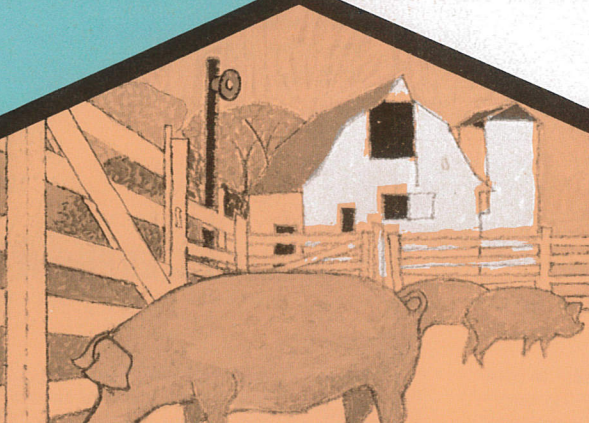

Saves trips between house and farm buildings. Suppose your wife has an outside call and something comes up she needs to discuss. She can "hold" the call, "broadcast" to you, get your reply, then complete the outside conversation. Or you can take over the call in the barn, if you wish. Either way, time and steps are saved.

Fence is fixed, what's next? Time and steps are saved by planning and outlining the next job over Interphone. Otherwise you'd have to spend time locating your helper or he'd have to find you.

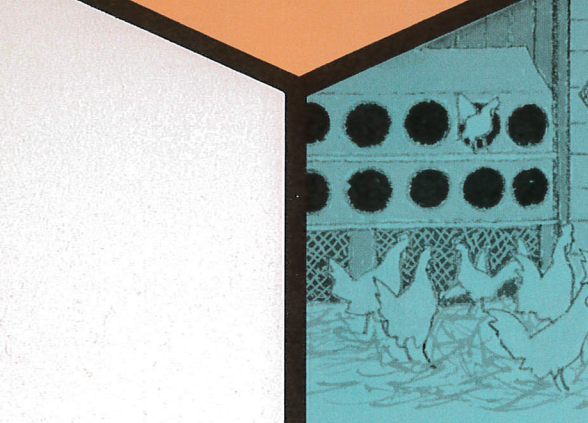

An "ear" in the farm buildings. Each Interphone station is an alert "ear." All sounds are transmitted to the house. Your prompt attention may save animal life or property damage.

Take it easy with that gate! Rooting under and rattling the gate. The sound's being transmitted to the house by Interphone. Somebody will glance out the window to make sure he doesn't shake the latch free. A new way to keep him where he belongs.

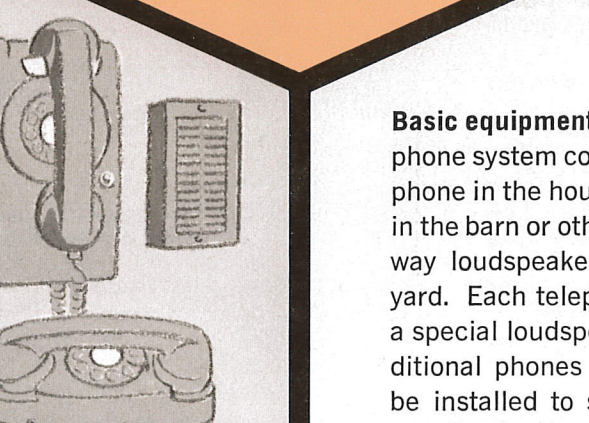

Need to locate a hired hand? Pick up the receiver at any station and you can broadcast your voice to all the other stations, including the loudspeaker in the yard. A quick, effortless way to locate another person around the place.

Talk "hands-free" right where you are. If your wife calls you on the intercom you can answer without picking up the phone, without interrupting your work. This is a very helpful feature around the farm. Or, if you want privacy, pick up the phone and talk directly to her.

Keeps track of the kids. The familiar sounds of children playing, coming in over the Interphone a reassuring to Mother in the house. When the familiar sounds disappear she can check and make sure everything is all right.

Basic equipment. The basic Farm Interphone system consists of one main telephone in the house, an extension phone in the barn or other buildings and a two-way loudspeaker located in the barnyard. Each telephone is equipped with a special loudspeaker-microphone. Additional phones and loudspeakers can be installed to suit your needs. Telephones in all locations are available in color—either wall or desk-type sets, including the Princess.

It talks to you and you can talk to it. A loudspeaker broadcasts or picks up your voice at considerable distance. The paths between the buildings get shorter with it on duty in the farmyard.

Hear that ring? Your telephone rings go out over the outside speaker and speakers at other Interphone stations when you prefer. That means you don't miss important calls when you're away from the house or the farm buildings.

Farm Interphone was tested for three years by selected farmers. They made suggestions which helped make Interphone the fine product it is today.

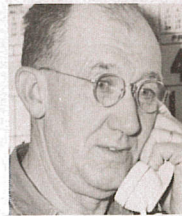

HERE'S WHAT FARM FOLKS SAY ABOUT INTERPHONE

"part of our everyday living"

"As you use Interphone you get used to the familiar sounds about the yard and in the barn; you're alerted immediately by any unfamiliar sounds."

Mr. Bryan Rossi, Rochester, Minn.

"I'd sure hate to get along without it"

"I'd sure hate to get along without it. It saves us all kinds of time and running every day. It's a real convenience. We sell our eggs and now we never miss an order because we can always hear the phone over the loudspeaker even if we're not in the house."

Mr. M. E. Rhodes, Big Flats, N. Y.

"I figure it saved our house from burning down"

"I wouldn't be without Interphone. I figure it saved our house from burning down. A fire started in the kitchen. I was in the barn and my wife called me on the Interphone. I came a-running. Another two or three minutes and the fire would have been out of control."

Mr. Joseph E. Robbins, Bath, New York

"saves me many trips to the barnlots each day"

"Our new Farm Interphone saves me many trips to the barnlots each day to deliver messages and to call Mr. Baur to the telephone. Also, it enables me to know just about what the activity is in the barnyard at any given time of day."

Mrs. R. E. Baur, Winterset, Iowa

"... it's worth a million dollars"

"In winter it's worth a million dollars. I just call Joe without leaving the house and chasing from building to building. I keep track of the children in the yard, with the loudspeaker. It picks up their voices and when I don't hear them, I know they've slipped off and I go out and check."

Mrs. Doris Robbins, Bath, New York

"... I can hear incoming rings through the loudspeaker"

"The feature I like best about this Farm Interphone is the receiving and placing of calls without going to the house three or four times a day. When Mrs. Baur is away, we can hear the incoming rings through the loudspeaker."

Mr. R. Edward Baur, Winterset, Iowa
