The transmitter transfer unit improves office efficiency by cutting interruptions in attendant's work . . . allows her to handle employee and customer calls without delay . . . reduces fatigue. ■ Just a touch of the toe transfers her voice from telephone to paging system and back again—INSTANTLY . . . EASILY . . . NO HANDS! ■ Her normal voice comes through the paging system clearly and without background noise. A separate paging microphone is no longer needed.

HOW THE TRANSMITTER TRANSFER UNIT SPEEDS CALLS AND PAGING

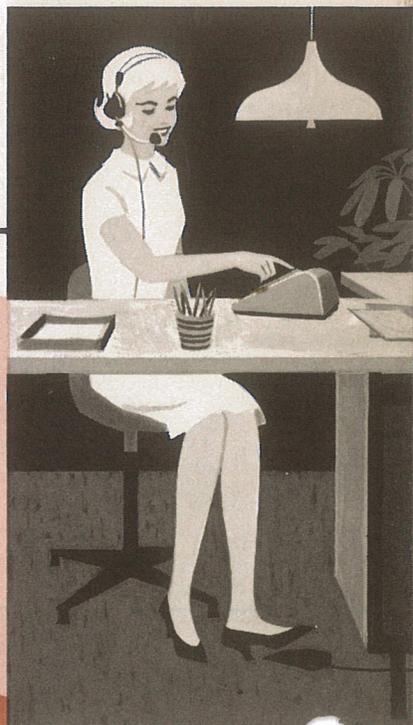

An important Long Distance call comes in for Mr. Smith. He's in the building, but not at his desk. His secretary suggests paging him.

Without a transmitter transfer unit, your attendant must reach for the paging microphone. Paging becomes an awkward, distracting, separate operation which slows up her handling of other calls.

With this transmitter transfer unit, she simply presses a foot pedal and immediately her voice goes through her telephone into the paging system to call Mr. Smith to the phone—instantly, easily, no hands.

She lifts her foot and her voice is back on the telephone. There's no interruption in her work—no delays in calls for your employees or your customers. And the caller won't hear the paging.
